- to maintain client relationships;
- to verify your identity and the other information you have provided to us, including your bank account information and (if relevant) the identity of your business associates;

- to notify clients of our product offerings and developments;
- for our reporting and management;
- to fulfil our legal obligation; and
- Any other purpose that would relate to our business.

V. Marketing

We may use personal data about individuals to market our product offerings and developments, including by email. However, you have the right to object to the processing of personal data concerning him/her for such marketing by writing to our Data Protection Officer on [f.moossa@adenia.com].

VI. With whom is your personal data being shared?

Adenia does not trade, rent or sell any personal data to any other organisation or third party. Your information is only provided to the relevant authorities unless you give your consent or if required by law, and to service providers such as our bankers, auditors, legal advisors and other service providers. We restrict the information that is passed on to the strict minimum.

Following the recent amendments in the law, disclosure of beneficial ownership is now required to be made to the authorities, including the Registrar of Companies. This entails that, for domestic companies, information such as beneficial ownership will be made available to the public (subject to a small administration fee for searches).

VII. Your consent

Your consent to provide us with your personal data is required prior to the lawful processing of your data in line with your engagement with Adenia.

You will be required to confirm by giving your consent in a clear and unambiguous action, to having read our Privacy Policy and proving your agreement to the processing of your personal data by Adenia.

VIII. Withdrawal of consent

You have the right to withdraw consent to Adenia as regards to the processing of your personal data at any time. Should you wish to exercise this right, you will have to inform Adenia in writing.

If you withdraw your consent, Adenia will not be able to provide you with certain services and which may even entail the termination of the agreement with Adenia. You will be informed accordingly.

Please note that notwithstanding the withdrawal of your consent, your personal data may still be processed by Adenia in performance of its legal obligations.

IX. What security measures are implemented to safeguard transmission and storage of data?

Subject to the purpose for which we have collected your personal data, we may store some of the information electronically in our system. Some or all of the personal data may be available to Adenia and its staff for use in accordance with this policy.

Adenia will endeavor to take all reasonable steps to keep secure any information which we hold about you, whether electronically or in hard-copy, and to keep this information accurate and up to date.

X. Links to other websites
